Stepping Into Elementary

At the tender age of five, we stepped out of our homes into a new world of school. We moved from writing our names in kindergarten to social studies in fifth grade, making new friends along the way.

These fifth graders won medals in the INTERCOM medal assembly contest.

In their Biology & Health class, fifth graders give their hearts

Twelve fifth grade girls also received medals in the 1971 singing contest.

. . . Stepping Into Middle School

Sixth grade was another change as we stepped out of elementary school into the more sophisticated life of middle school. We struggled with the mod system, NEDT tests, and string drawings. Then came the big transition.

Our freshmen football team in '74 finished with a 2-5 record.

STUDENT LIFE

P.E. Gym, Pool Highlight New Addition

Construction, completed in October, expanded the educational and recreational opportunities at Adams Central. A spacious new three-station gym includes a wrestling area, gymnastic equipment, and various courts for games. The gym, adding needed space, is constantly utilized by middle and high school athletic teams.

Opened in November, the 25 meter swimming pool is enthusiastically used by gym classes, grades one through ten, and community swim programs.

Roomy Home Ec facilities house modern kitchens, sewing areas and classroom space.

A group of specialized workrooms for ceramics, wood, and photography adjoin the general arts lab of the Art Department of the new wing.

In addition, the middle school gained a library and the elementary acquired new playground equipment.

Attractive landscaping welcomes you to Adams Central High School.

Homecoming Is . . .

Huddled together against the piercing wind, wrapped in warm cuddly blankets, fans, parents, and the '69 undefeated football stars watched as Vickie Lichtle was crowned Homecoming Queen. Her court consisted of Verona Troxel, Dee Ann Kohne, Dawn Gerig, Brenda Frey, Michelle Barger, Ann Fiechter, Joni Gerber, and Vicki Isch.

Unlike previous years, there was no float competition. The marching Jets Band performed their last half-time show of the season. Sliding and skiding, the football team was victorious over the 'Busco Eagles 23-0. To complete the evening, the students discoed to "Volume III" in the cafeteria.

A.C. Invades D.C.

Six senior girls pose atop a triceratops at the Smithsonian Institute.

Juniors and seniors enjoy talking with John Denver's father at the Washington, D.C. airport.

While visiting the Smithsonian, students were free to ride the elevator up the Washington monument.

At Arlington Cemetery, we view the changing of the guard at the Tomb of the Unknown soldier.

At 8:02 a.m., our "Bic Banana" airplane lifted off from the Baer Field runway to carry Juniors and Seniors to Washington, D.C. After landing a few miles from our nation's capital, we clambered onto two buses and made our way to our first stop: Arlington Cemetery. A hush engulfed our group as we watched the ceremony for the changing of the guard. The Bureau of Printing and Engraving impressed us in a different way as we gazed at fresh stacks of green paper work $10,000. The White House wasn't open so we bussed to the AFL-CIO National Headquarters.

After driving through town, we reached Capitol Hill. Our tour started from the Rotunda, half of us visiting the Senate and the other half the House of Representatives. We lunched at Scholl's cafeteria before traveling on to the Smithsonian, which offered something to interest everyone, from the Hope diamond to the Spirit of St. Louis. While strolling through the Smithsonian Mall, we were accosted by Hare Krsna people selling carnations. Some of us took the elevator to the summit of the Washington Monument to snap photos of the panorama.

Hopping once more on our buses, we drove past the Jefferson Memorial, and paused at the Lincoln Memorial, the Kennedy Performing Arts Center, and the Iwo Jima monument. We stopped to eat at Howard Johnson's, then went to the airport where the "Bic Banana" brought us back home.

Juniors Robin Riley and Brad Snyder sport Hare Krsna carnations in their hair while waiting for the "Bic Banana" to arrive at the airport.

After a long day of sightseeing, senior Lori Clark returns to her seat on the "Bic Banana".

Our first stop was Arlington Cemetery, where past members of the armed forces are buried.

SSS Presents "Oriental Dream"

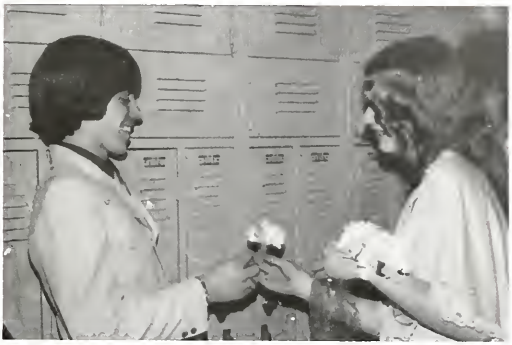
"Shadow", a group from Bluffton, plays their opening number.

Freshman Jed Speakman escorts Mrs. Bob Mitchel to her table.

Orientally attired, Mrs. Elzey and Mrs. Ringger serve after-dinner coffee to the teachers.

Couples enjoy the Oriental atmosphere and slush punch between dances.

Before the banquet, Brian Kershner and Marlene Steffen exchange flowers.



Pastel shades of green, yellow, blue, and orchid transformed the cafeteria into an exotic Oriental garden for the '78 Sunshine Banquet. Couples arrived at 5:15 for pictures by Dave Cole, then sat down to a meal accompanied by chopsticks and fortune cookies. Following dinner, a movie, "The Other Side of the Mountain", was shown in the lecture area. A dance in the cafeteria, featuring "Shadow", concluded the evening.

The night before the banquet, Julie Speakman sits atop a scaffold to hang a mural.

Play Goes "Ugly"

Under the direction of Mr. Comiskey and Ms. Swartzendruber, the Drama Club presented a one-act comedy, "The Ugly Duckling." The play followed the Band Chicken Barbecue and concert April 7.

"The Ugly Duckling's" plot evolved a medieval king (Cam Erekson) and queen (Melissa Wilson) who, with the help of the Chancellor (Julie Ringger) tried to marry off their very plain daughter Princess Camilla (Joyce Weber) to an equally ordinary-looking Prince Simon (John Jesionowski). The king decided to have Princess Camilla's beautiful waiting-maid Dulcibella (Margaret Alberson) pretend to be the Princess until the wedding. At the same time, Prince Simon's handsome attendant Carlo (Lee Jesionowski) pretended to be the Prince to win over Princess Camilla's hand. What resulted was a royal mess, but all ended happily.

Prince Simon reacts violently to a cramp after swinging across the moat by a tree.

With instructions from the King, Dulcibella tries her best to act like a princess.

Prince Simon (alias Carlos) answers the riddle for the hand of Princess Camilla (alias Dulcibella).

Practicing before an audience, Prince Simon and Princess Camilla perform for the first graders.

The Queen, King, and Princess Camilla plot together to deceive Prince Simon.

Make-up artists Chris Elzey and Julie Speakman ready Joyce Weber for her final role as a beautiful princess.

Teams tangle in the meanest of playday activities, the piggy-back challenge.

Donna Hack finds room to push in marshmallow number 24.

Mr. Rinkenberger enjoys eating cream pie after a slam by Bob Heimann.

After spinning six times around a baseball bat, Sandy Beer finds that running is difficult.

Betty Byerly finds champion Lee Ann Mitchell's method of eating pie quite unique.

Crawling centipedes infiltrate Playday activities.

High school students enjoyed AC's first springtime playday April 14. One new event, an obstacle course, was won by juniors Scott Dick and Tracy Ainsworth. The juniors also captured first place in the greased watermelon relay and the wiffle-bat relay. The sophomores proved they could crawl the fastest by winning the centipede race.

In individual events, defending champ Donna Hack broke her own record of 20 by cramming 24 marshmallows in her mouth. Juli Isch and Brenda Lambright took first in the girls' egg toss, while Dave Nelson and Scott Dick won the boys'. The team of Mark Waltmire and Ann Fiechter managed to knock everyone else to the ground in the piggy-back challenge. DeeDee Lehman and Mark Waltmire copped first in the sack races. Lee Ann Mitchel ate a frozen pie — with no hands — faster than any other girl, while Tod Striker and Rex Harris tied for the boys' championship. The annual tug-of-war competition between classes ended the afternoon.

Queen Brenda Frey exclaims over her dozen roses as king Doug Lehman examines his pendant.

"Jumpstreet," a band from Muncie, features a brass section which makes dance music different than usual.

Prom couples enjoy a family style dinner in the country atmosphere of Bearcreek Farms.

As an exciting end to the school year, juniors and seniors enjoyed a fun-filled evening at Bearcreek Farms. "Reflections" was the theme of the '78 prom.

For the first time, pictures were taken outdoors — on a horse and buggy — by Affolders. At 9:45 a family style dinner was served, then Doug Lehman and Brenda Frey were crowned prom king and queen. The band "Jumpstreet" played for after-dinner dancing. After the dance, couples traveled to Portland for "Smokey and the Bandit" and then to Villa Lanes for bowling.

Cameras flashed. Proud parents smiled. "Pomp and a Circumstance" echoed through the gym. Dressed in their class colors — red and white — and carrying red roses, 99 seniors marched slowly to front row seats. After invocation and a performance by the high school choir, seniors Joni Gerber, Ann Fiechter, Dawn Gerig, and Lisa Longenberger sang the melancholy "Halls of Central." Valedictorian Lori Clark delivered a speech on the fun parts of high school, which was followed up with a few words from co-valedictorian Becky McAhren. Both girls compiled a perfect 4.00 average during high school. Dave Soldner, Lori Clark, Lisa Longenberger, Ed Hack, Doug Lehman, and Julie Nelson were given the first Adams Central Scholarship Foundation awards of $400 each. A trumpet solo, "Feels So Good," was played by Bob Heimann. Mr. Van then recognized Hoosier scholars, the top ten, other scholarship recipients, and seniors with outstanding attendance. Dr. Alberson presented diplomas, tassels were moved from right to left, and red and white caps were tossed into the air. Recessional was played. More pictures taken. Suddenly it was all over ... time for the traditional parties, gifts, and celebration.

Copy editor Julie Ringger and layout editor Becky McAhren discuss the yearbook's theme on their study time.

Deadlines, Deadlines, Deadlines!

After a work-filled week at Ball State's Journalism Workshop, design and copy editors Becky McAhren and Julie Ringger returned with new ideas for the '78 Cen-Trails. Along with Editor-in-Chief Ann Fiechter, they developed the theme, as well as copy and headline styles and basic content of the annual.

Headed by the seniors and assistant editor Carolyn Lichtle, the Juniors learned how to use new items such as 3-R forms, croppers, and 3-C copy sheets. The editors — plus five photographers, four design people, five copy writers, and advisor Mr. Markley — put together the final product, AC's first yearbook with color sections.

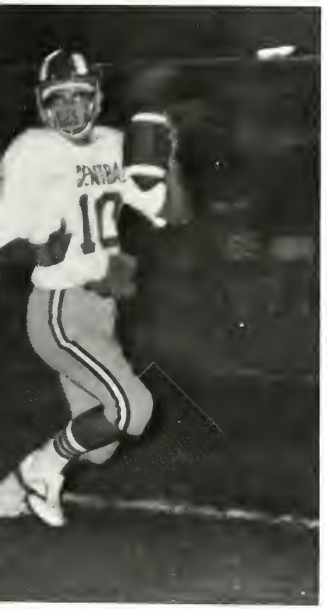
Jets Surpass Previous Seasons!

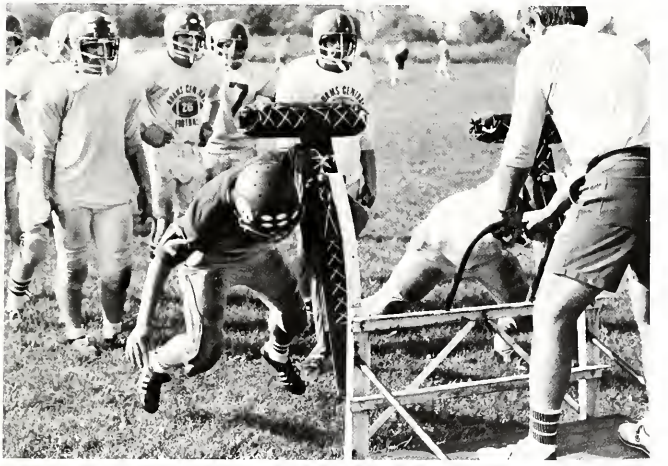
Individually and as a team, the performance of the 1977 Flying Jets surpassed previous seasons.

Bolstered by two early wins over conference rivals Leo and Eastside, the Jets finished with a 5-5 mark. Inhibited by size, the team compensated with agility, quickness, and versatility. Randy Hirschy, who lead the team in rushing, kick-offs, and scoring, was selected All-Conference offensive Back. Quarterback Gary Hoffman completed 47 pass attempts to receive All-Conference Honorable Mention. Also honored were seniors Dave Bertsch, Ed Hack, Mark Waltmire, and Randy Taylor.

Senior Gary Hoffman commented, "It's been very rewarding. Coach Minnich is a great coach who inspired us to one of the school's better records in the past few years."

Coach Minnich remarked, "It was a very enjoyable season, mainly because of the athletes we had to work with. The coaching staff is very enthusiastic and hopeful about the football program at Adams Central."





Everyone "shoulders the load" in practice three weeks before the football season starts.

Quarterback Gary Hoffman scans the field for eligible receivers.

Shattered Records Ease Losing Season

The only senior on the team, Gene Gerber, passes through the gate at a home meet.

"I am very satisfied with the great improvement our boys made on their times this past season," commented cross county coach Steve Mugg. "They've shown determination and dedication during each meet."

Returning with four lettermen plus two new runners, the harriers finished their season with a disappointing 1-2 dual record and a 0-5 triangular mark. Larry Strahm shattered his previous school record and course record of 13:06 as well as the sophomore record, with a time of 13:00 flat.

Team captain Gene Gerber concluded, "Even though we didn't win many meets, I still enjoyed the benefits and rewards of being on a small team."

Sprinting the last stretch of the 2½ mile course, Dale Ringger receives encouragement from Coach Mugg.

A new coach changed the pace for most of the players including Becky McAhren and Cheryl Rumple. "It was hard work, but I enjoyed it," stated Becky. The girls chose Becky and Carolyn Lichtle as their co-captains.

Freshman Laura Middendorf received the Serving Percentage Trophy and Becky McAhren was recognized as Most Valuable Player.

The team didn't net many victories, volleying to a 4-16 season. What helped the girls get through the season? "Faith and patience, the two main ingredients to be a success." stressed Braden.

Disappointment. There is really no other word to sum up the team's 1-16 season. There were several narrow losses such as the 43-42 loss against Eastside. The sole victory of the season came against Huntington Catholic. The Jets averaged 52.5 points per game while giving up 66.1 points. Size was a major problems for the team: it was said that the Jets operated with a "five-guard" team.

Leading scorer for the Jets was Gary Hoffman with a 13.1 average. JV's Win Union City Thriller

Once again, the JV team was rather young. According to Coach Reinking, it wasn't unusual to have three sophomores and two freshmen on the floor at the same time. It was a year to grow — accented by the season's best moment in the overtime win over Union City.

As quoted from Coach McIntosh, "The main objectives of Freshmen basketball are to have the players continue to learn the fundamentals while trying to play to the best of their abilities." The team members attained both of these objectives, even though the season included just one win. Keith Hirschy was named Most Valuable Player, with Andy Lehman as best defensive player and Dan Lambert as Most Improved Player.

Most Valuable Player Cheryl Rumple drives into the three-second lane for a jump shot.

"This year we used several young and inexperienced players. They performed well under the circumstances," stated girls basketball coach Bill Hubbard. The cagers opened with only two letterwomen on the squad, and finished with a 1-11 record. A 27-16 victory over county rival South Adams highlighted the season. At the Winter-Spring sports banquet, Cheryl Rumple was named most valuable player, Tracy Ainsworth was given most improved player and most steals awards, freshman Laura Middendorf received the free-throw percentage trophy, and Trina Foor received awards for most rebounds and best field goal percentage.

Because of the small team (12 players), the reserve team either cancelled or (12) played two-quarter games. The JV's finished with a 2-2 mark. Freshman Cindy Heiser was named reserve MVP.

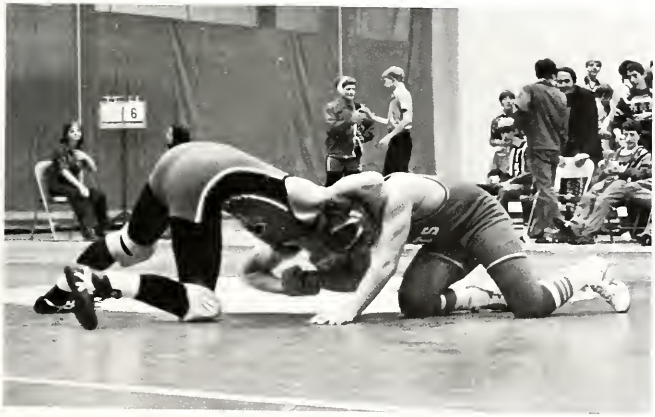
BAGUBAS Share ACAC Title



With a record of 8-2, the 1977-78 wrestling Jets ended an impressive season by sharing the ACAC Conference Championship with Carroll. The BAGUBA's went undefeated in dual conference matches, losing only to non-conference foes, Huntington North and Bellmont.

Boasting a young talented team with only five senior members — Gene Gerber, Kevin Seitz, Kevin Engle, Art Weisman, and John Jesionowski — Coach Humble surpassed his expectations for the year. Placing second in the ACAC tourney, the AC 8-way, and the Sectional were three of the team's accomplishments.

In the 132 pound class, Jim Hatten won Sectional honors and finished fourth in the Regional while also scoring the most takedowns (24) for the season. Team members honored Tony Genth as BAGUBA of the Year. Dan Engle earned the trophy for most pins in a season with twelve.

Coach Walsh and Coach Mertz led the reserve wrestling squad to a 9-4 winning season.

In the Reserve Jet Invitational Tourney, the A.C. wrestlers placed second out of 7 other teams, losing to Bishop Luers by only 8½ points. Taking first place were champions Lennie Hirschy, Jim Oliver, and Jeff Eyanson.

Hoping to step out and move ahead, reserve challenges proved a constant threat to varsity positions.

Reserves Bomb Southern Wells

Wet spring weather kept the reserves from getting on the practice field. This was probably the reason for their poor showing in the first three games.

"The boys did a fine job especially around mid-season when we played our toughest competition." stated Coach Brown.

Gary Manley hit at a clip of .714 through the first six games. Gary also pitched in their only win which was against Southern Wells.

Brian Fennig winds up for the pitch.

The AC Jets, a team composed of 10 lettermen, played a rough schedule in one of the worst springs weatherwise ever experienced in high school baseball. The team finished the regular season with a 7-14 mark but enjoyed a measurable amount of success in conference play winding up in third place with a 5-3 record.

An inexperienced pitching staff was tested in a grueling 21 game schedule played often times in rough weather. Senior Doug Lehman and sophomore Brett Brunner shouldered the load for the Jets.

Sophomore Mike Cooper was the leading hitter with a .394 average. Senior Randy Hirschy batted .343 while stealing 17 bases in 18 attempts. Hirschy also led the team in RBI's with 14.

AC scored 10 runs in 7 of their games and at times ran opponents ragged with their team speed as they accumulated 75 stolen bases in 81 attempts.

A properly executed slide enables Dave Nelson to elude the third-base man's tag.

Hough's Men Have Rough Season

Brad Snyder seems determined to hurdle his way to a blue ribbon.

"We did the best we could, so we were successful." stated first year coach, Mr. Hough. The track team consisted mostly of underclassmen. Don Adkison was co-captain and Most Valuable Running Event Man. Junior Mike Steury served as co-captain also.

Hal Lehman broke the school record in the low hurdles, placing 9th in the Sectional, and also tallied the most points throughout the year.

Scott Mitchel was named Most Valuable Field Event Man while Randy Ringger earned the award for Hardest Worker throughout the season. Jim Hatten qualified for Sectional in the pole vault.

At the Bi-County track meet, lineman Doug Yoder explains his "complicated" job to Dean Sprunger and Barry Williamson.

Concentrating on his form, Hal Lehman tries to make up for lost time.

Runners To Your Mark!

Brenda Lambright and Sue Wies urge LaNae Smitley on as she strides step for step with her Bellmont opponent.

With different approaches and new ideas, Becky Braden accepted the challenge of coaching the girls track team for the first time. And a challenge it was! First, the Blizzard of '78 hindered outdoor practices. Snow covered the track until the team members shoveled it off. Lack of experience and tough competition also made the going rough. It added up to be a difficult season ending with a 1-14 record.

The girls voted in Tracy Longenberger and Cheryl Rumple as co-captains. At the Sports Banquet, Cheryl Rumple was named MVP in field events, while Cindy Hartman was chosen MVP in running events. Both qualified for sectional in their events.

Sectional qualifier Cindy Hartman maintains her lead in the mile run.

Schmitt Ties School 9-Hole Record

Coach Habegger provides his team members with last minute instructions as Bruce Gagle awaits his tee time.

Junior John Schmitt highlighted an otherwise lean season by tying the school nine-hole record with a 38 at the Eel River course. John was also named medalist of the year while improving his average by three strokes over last season.

Sophomore Lee Jesionowski became the most improved golfer for the team which captured only two of its matches.

Seniors Lead Rifle Team

Rod Gerber and Dennis Call aim for the target in the prone position.

The 1978 Rifle Team captured third place in the tri-county meet with Tim Colchin placing first in the kneeling competion.

The shooters vied in three positions — prone, kneeling, and off-hand. A perfect score is one hundred points for each position, or a total of three hundred points.

Top Gun for the varsity squad was Rod Gerber who edged out Lori Braun, last year's winner, by only one point. Anita Braun was named the reserve team's Top Gun. The JV shooters placed fourth in their tri-county match.

Senior Dave Winans was named team captain. Other seniors were Dennis Call and Tim Colchin.

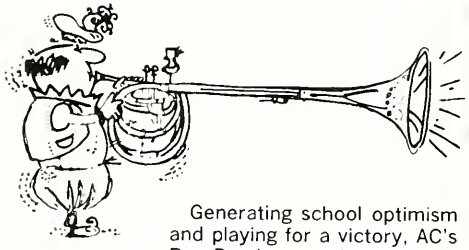
Pep Band Plays At IUPU-Bethel Game

Front and center, the Woodwinds in action.

Terry Kipfer and the brass section provide a rich and mellow sound.



Generating school optimism and playing for a victory, AC's Pep Band aroused excitement at every home basketball game and the AC-Bellmont wrestling match.

Accepting an invitation from the IU-PU cheerleaders, the pep band performed at the IUPU — Bethel College basketball game and later devoured a pizza smorgasbord.

Pep Club Keeps Spirits High

Pandemonium reigns after another bucket.

New chants and cheers filled the air as the Pep Club kept spirits high. The support of the pep block demonstrated to the football and basketball squads that AC fans were behind them completely. Attired in painter pants and red and white polo shirts, the pep block was a distinctive feature at every basketball game, whether doing a chorus line kick or sporting snazzy red and white felt derbies.

Officers elected for the year were: President — Lora Rich; Vice President — Cheryl Gerber; Secretary — Cheryl Rich; Treasurer — Sandy Kaehr.

The reserve cheerleaders lead the pep block in a rousing chant.

"We want two more points!"

Generate Spirit, Generate Heat . . .

The crowd and cheerleaders enthusiastically applaud another great play.

Generating spirit, the cheerleaders involved the Pep Club and fans in spirited chants and cheers. A welcome addition to the girls squad was the guy cheerleaders who aided the varsity squad in many mounts. Cheerleading camp and numerous afterschool practices helped the varsity, reserve, and freshmen squads perfect routines for games and pep rallies.

"Energy" Unites Sports Banquets

Football awards were presented to Gary Hoffman, Honorary Captain; Randy Taylor, Honorary Captain; Dave Bertsch, Honorary Captain; Mark Waltmire, Most Valuable Defensive Lineman; Randy Hirschy, Most Valuable Offensive Back and All-ACAC Conference team and Gary Manley, Freshmen MVP.

Coach Hough comments on the boys' track season while Jeff Adkison, Stan Ringger, Kip Riedenbach, Doug Call, Larry Strahm and Don Adkison study their awards.

Outstanding Athletes Gary Hoffman and Becky McAhren proudly display their trophies.

Assisted by Mr. Green, Coach Walsh hands out certificates to freshmen football members.

The Fall Sports Banquet, held in the cafeteria as a carry-in-dinner, honored the members of football, cross country, girls volleyball, and also the cheerleaders.

Both the Winter and Spring Sports Banquets were combined as one since the energy crisis forced the annual winter banquet to be cancelled. The awards section of the program took place in the spectator gym. All the athletes received a minor or major award and recognition from their respective coaches for their achievements.

Coach Bantz honored Hal Lehman with the Robert W. Shoup mental attitude award. Gary Hoffman received a blanket award for lettering eight times and defending those letters during his senior year.

Most Valuable Player awards went to Cheryl Rumple, track and basketball; Cindy Hartman, track; Scott Mitchel, track; Don Adkison, track; Keith Hirschy, freshmen basketball.

Rifle team members, Rod Gerber, Anita Braun, Lori Braun, and Tim Colchin receive their trophies.

High School Principal Larry Vandeventer began his first year at A.C. helping to organize the new facilities. After two years of planning and construction the new addition was completed in October.

Sharing teachers (between Middle School and High School) and the newly formed study hall system were all considered when revising this year's schedule. Modifications in the 1978-79 school year were also made by the administration.

The energy crisis necessitated cutbacks in extra-curricular activities and forced adjustment in lighting and heating.

Board members listen as Mr. Gorrell shares his monthly report.

We apologize that no picture was available for Guidance Director, Stewart Schnepf, due to his extended illness.

Seniors Win Sectional Showcase Competition

Government class, long hours studying (?), Co-op ... all part of a senior's life. The class of '78 signed each others' memory books and yearbooks until their arms ached.

They also won the showcase contest, with the theme "Jet Wars", during Sectional Week.

The seniors chose the school colors, red and white, as their class colors and a red rose as the class flower. Doug Lehman was elected class president, Vickie Lichtle vice-president, Lori Clark secretary, and Gene Gerber treasurer.

Mr. Glass, Mr. Taylor, and Mrs. Nussbaum think three heads are better than one in solving the study hall problem.

Stepping out of the I.S. system, teachers found themselves supervising students in study halls. "Study halls are great and have helped prevent problems," replied Norman Glass when asked to voice his opinion on the situation.

We often assume no one hears of Monroe, but Adams Central has employed faculty members from the jungles of Peru, South America (Tom Hough — swimming instructor), a school in Poland (Audrey Swartzendruber — English department), and the smog of New York City (Steve Comiskey — English department).

The year was an exciting one for the class of '79. Bearcreek Farms was selected as the location for the 1978 prom. The night proved to be an exciting one for all who attended. Dinner, dancing, entertainment, a movie, and bowling were all included in the evening.

Selling concessions and magazines, as usual, were the money-making projects for funding the prom.

Juniors will always remember chemistry, cramming for tests, U.S. History, and the Blizzard of '78.

The key words to describing most sophomores are "in-between" or "stuck in the middle." They're too young for "this" and not old enough for "that."

The individuals in the class of '80 do not find this generalization a problem. They overcome it by stepping out and getting involved.

One of the sophomores commented, "It's better than last year! Since everyone watches the freshmen or looks up to the juniors and seniors we can get away with lots."

Now that they have their class rings and licenses, they are moving ahead to the year '80 when they're free to go.

The class of '81 stepped out into high school and soon discovered the contrasts from middle school.

Joining in athletics, band, choir, pep club, FCA, FFA, GAA, foreign language clubs and other fun activities like dances and decorating display cases for sectional highlighted their year.

Other than the extra-curricular activities, the freshmen felt high school was "just school" . . . assignments, books, teachers, and study hall with study hall being their most popular complaint.

Along their search for knowledge the frosh soon learned to accept the "thorns with the roses." The class of '81 is moving ahead — "hoping for the best, expecting the worst and taking what comes."

During the year they elected Rick Valencia — president, Jill Johnson — vice president, Jodi Holtsberry — secretary, and Brenda Lambright — treasurer.

Cooks, Janitors, Bus Drivers, Nurses

Transporting nearly 1400 students to and from school each day and driving athletic teams and other groups was the responsibility of eighteen AC bus operators. Daily, drivers were challenged by weather conditions which proved unpredictable at best.

In addition to their usual maintenance jobs, cleaning, fixing lockers, and repairs, the custodians spent many hours clearing snow and adjusting heat and light levels to conserve energy.

Bud Fisher and Gene Arnold stay busy keeping the school neat and in good repair.

Administering First Aid is only a small part of the school nurse's job each day. In addition to caring for students who are ill, the nurses give TB shots, test sight and hearing and take medical records of incoming kindergartners at Kindergarten Round-Up.

The cafeteria personnel work day after day to provide hot, nourishing meals. Planning, preparing and serving lunches which meet government specifications is a difficult job but the cooks under the supervision of Joan Zurcher prove equal to it.

CLASSES

Pam Miller entertains a youngster as a part of her child development studies.

So What's Cookin'?

Dating discussions and consumer education were the main topics studied by the Freshmen Home Ec. classes.

Home Ec. II centered around Child and Human Development. Helping with small children and making toys for them were just a few of their projects during the year.

Planning their dream houses, Junior girls learned all about furniture, windows, carpeting, layouts, and expenses. Also, cooking a variety of foods helped prepare the girls for the years to come.

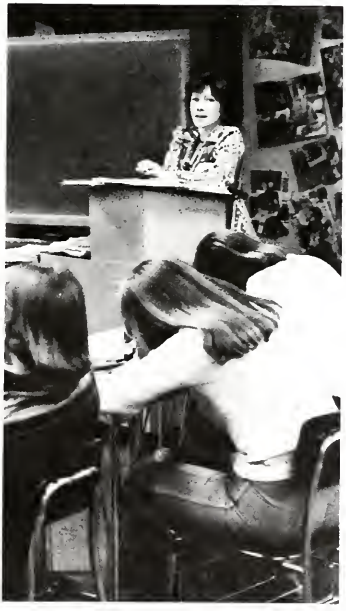
Seniors in Home Ec. IV planned weddings and learned to manage money. Group discussions aided in planning a wedding and budgeting the many expenses of married life.

Freshmen girls enjoy the transfiguration of Patty Fawbush during a make-up demonstration.

Senior girls observe as a guest speaker demonstrates her cake-decorating technique.

Maureen Gilbert puts the finishing touches on a sewing project.

The Home Ec. II class appears busy at work on their child care assignments.



Mrs. Gilbert leads a discussion on home planning and furnishing.

There was a wide variety of English courses available at AC, ranging from the required Freshmen English to college preparatory Senior Composition.

Mr. Reinking taught his freshmen students basic English principles to ready them for more difficult classes as upperclassmen.

English department head Mr. Markley taught Vocabulary and Spelling, Western/Sports, and Mass Media. He also served as yearbook advisor.

In his second year at AC, Mr. Comisky taught Mystery and Suspense, Short Story, and Speech classes, and also was co- sponsor of the Drama Club.

A new teacher, Miss Swartzendruber was Basic Writing and Senior Comp instructor. She co-directed the Drama Club play and sponsored FCA and the Jet Stream.

While Mike Morrissey daydreams, Kip Reidenbach and Jeff Yoder work on their Basic Writing.

Bob Wilder and Craig Seitz search for articles for a Mass Media assignment.

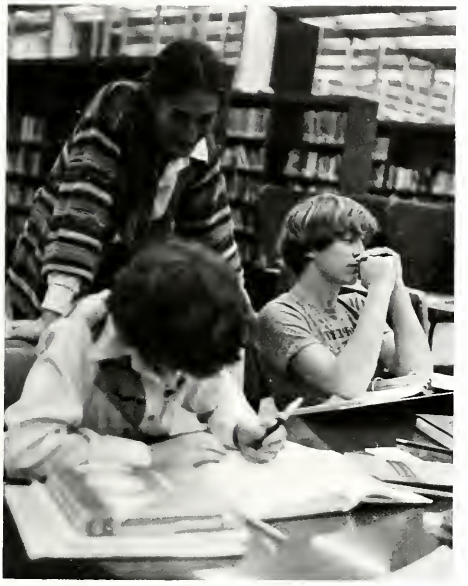
Mr. Comiskey assists Scott Simerman in finding research sources for his speech.



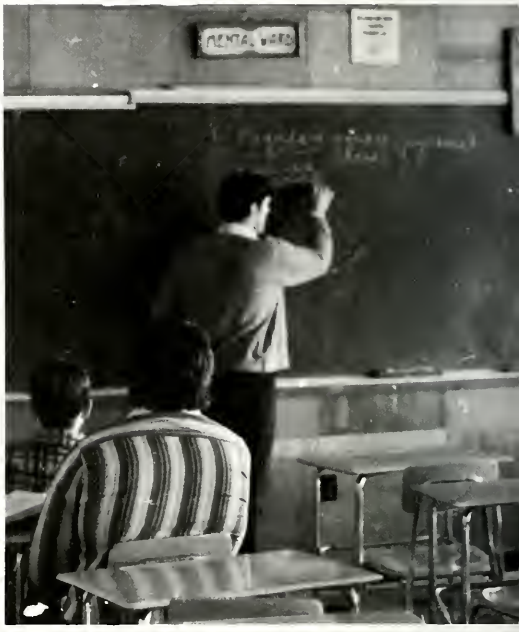
Miss Swartzendruber aids Doug Call and John Marbach in searching for articles to back up their term papers.

Seniors, Lori Clark, Ed Hack, Denise Coil and Lisa Longenberger read "their own thing" for a comp report.

Mr. Markley intrigues his class with his knowledge of the west and sports.

Mr. Rink's lecture doesn't seem to interest everyone.

Karen Garwood interupts Geometry class to tell Shari Koehr the latest gossip.



"Where's my present?" exclaims Dennis Call at the Senior Math Christmas party.

Coach and Teacher Randy Miller uses his X, Y-Team Theory on his Algebra class.

Rink Forms Math Club For Seniors

"This is where we separate those of you who are just plugger-inners from those who know how to apply the underlying concepts." Mr. Rinkenberger stressed this phrase biweekly to his Senior Math students. Rink pushed his students to think out problems for themselves instead of just memorizing formulas. From Geometry proofs and constructions to Algebra II quadratic equations and logarithms to Senior Math reduction formulas and vectors Rink endeavored to impart his enthusiasm to all his students. Mr. Miller drilled his math students to prepare them for higher levels of Algebra and Geometry.

Mr. Rink sponsored a Senior Math Club — a new organization for AC. On November 10, the club bussed to the IUPU extension in Fort Wayne and also visited the Harvester computer center. Ed Hack was chosen as president of Math Club.

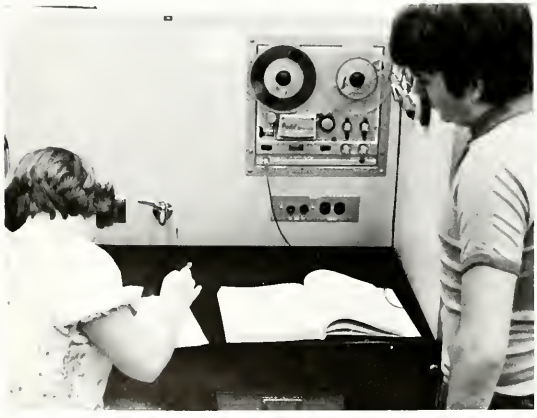
Kevin Rich, Brad Snyder, and Dave Nelson manage to side-track Mr. Rinkenberger during an Algebra II lecture.

Mr. Miller's Freshmen Algebra class studies the coordinate plane in preparation for Geometry.

Scientists Created In Labs

Expressions of bewilderment prevail during Mr. Hubbard's Biology lecture.

"Oh yuck" echoed from the Biology Lab as probe and scalpel carved up a frogs heart. "Gross" complained a chemistry student as Mr. Allspaw handed out objective sheets on organic compounds. Groans of "This is the pits" filtered through the Physics Lab as a myriad of velocity formulas demanded memorization. But the science students survived the tapes, lectures, quizzes, and tests. The labs stimulated an interest in practical applications for science. The pocket calculator simplified the task of solving intricate problems. On the whole, the students managed to build up a science background to prepare them for advanced study.



"So that's how you do it," Lynn Rich observes as Laura Aschliman finishes her lab report.

A tape about animal behavior transmits Mr. Hubbard's voice onto Anita Brown's paper.

"This smells awful," grimaces Beth Kipfer.

"That looks like 5.32 milliliters to me," decides Jeff Agler.

Jodi Ringger doesn't need to worry; Joleen Kipfer's steady hands won't spill a drop.

In Business Machines class, Cheryl Harshman explains to Nancy Kahn how to multiply on their new machine.

On the job at Monroe Grain, Joni Gerber works as a bookkeeper.

Mike Morrisey and Simona Lambert work together to balance their practice set in Bookkeeping I.

On her Co-op job, Julie Nelson helps a patron at Monroe Bank.

None Of Your Business!

Typing on electric typewriters, Carolyn Lichtle, Tracy Ainsworth, and Deb Bluhm do a timed writing.

Practice sets, a demanding part of any business course, are real life business simulations involving problems workers cope with. Done under time limits, strict regulations, and a hard grading scale, they force students to use the knowledge already acquired in class.

The business department offers something for everyone. General Business, Business Law, Business Management, and Consumer Marketing prepare students to be better consumers. For those interested in vocational skills, Typing I and II, Bookkeeping I and II, Business Machines, Shorthand I and II, and Secretarial Training stress competency and accuracy.

On the senior level, ICE students (Interdisciplinary Cooperative Education) spend one-half day in the classroom and the remaining half on the job. In this way seniors can gain experience, make money, and earn school credits.

Typing I students Carrie Liby and Scott Dick work on a 20-minute production test.

Close Encounter With Spain

Three pretty senoritas pose with a guide in an archway of the Generalife Gardens.

La Alhambra fue muy bonita!

After a year of waiting and fund raising (which included two Chili-Taco suppers, newspaper drives, and popcorn sales), twenty-five Spanish club members plus sponsors Mr. and Mrs. Inniger embarked on their trip to Spain. Leaving Baer Field on March 16, the group spent eleven days exploring cathedrals and palaces; running along the beach by the Mediterranean; practicing Spanish with hotel clerks, waiters and Spanish children; singing songs on the bus; and just absorbing the Spanish culture. From the Holy Week procession in Sevilla to the ants in the hotel in Torremolinos, the trip proved an unforgettable experience for all.

Vonda Alberson, Karen Gerber and Lisa Clark view the tile and mosaic work at the Plaza de Espana.

Jackie Rhodes, Pam Burkhart, and Jane Cook watch filmstrips on Spanish culture in Spanish III.

"¿Cómo estás? Muy bien, gracias". This simple conversation opened the world of Spanish to the first year students. Señora Inniger guided her students from simple verb conjugations and vocabulary to the subjunctive tenses and hosts of idioms to studies of Spanish history and culture. As busy as Mrs. Inniger was teaching Spanish I-IV, she always found time to chat with her students after class, even serving as guidance counselor when she was needed.

Spanish Club Officers: Vickie Lichtle — president, Jodi Isch — vice-president, Gary Hoffman — secretary, Doug Lehman — treasurer.

French Club Holds Mardi Gras

The newly-formed French Club celebrated Mardi Gras by throwing a costume party on April 1st. Prizes were awarded to the most festive costumes. Although the scheduled band failed to show up, a sock-hop was set up in its place. Members of the French club purchased red and white T-shirts printed with the Eiffel Tower.

In December, Marie-Claude, a guest speaker from France paid a visit to the French classes. Student teacher Stacy Roberts helped out Mrs. Inniger from December through February. As an optional activity, French students started writing to pen pals in countries such as France, Haiti, and Algiers.

German Club Enjoys Snow Skiing

President Cam Erekson and Miss Imler seem to enjoy the idea of going skiing.

Preparing for the Oktoberfest, Marlene Steffen and Rick Ogg string crepe paper across the gym.

With the money from the annual Oktoberfest, German Club members traveled to Swiss Valley, Michigan for a fun-filled day of snow skiing.

Among numerous projects, German classes enjoyed a visit from a native German and Mr. Clampitt reported on the history of Germany. Students also mastered their second language by presenting speeches and stories in German and visited a program entitled "The Music and Dance of Germany" in Fort Wayne.

The officers of German Club were: president — Cam Erekson, vice-president — Rita Fuhrman, secretary — Kristi Vandeventer and treasurer — Joyce Weber.

More Opportunities In Art

Brad Butler discovers that attention to detail pays off in painting.

A general arts lab, darkroom, woodworking area, and a ceramics room offered students more opportunities to express their creativity. With the new equipment and additional space, students could develop art skills during study time or while other classes were in session.

As well as using new skills, classes learned art history and the basics of design, color, and perspective. Samples of student work were displayed at the Rops Concert and during the "Evening of Fine Arts" in April. A showcase adjoining the art complex provided a setting for an ever-changing display of arts and crafts.

PERCUSSION

"Ten-hut" and "Think CYO" were just some of Mr. Collins favorite sayings used to psych up Marching Jets Band members.

During an exhausting week at Ball State's Band Camp, the band maneuvered complex formations which earned them an excellent rating at the CYO contest and helped make up football halftime shows.

Besides band camp, CYO, and field shows,the Jets Band competed in numerous parades such as the Three Rivers Festival, Bluffton Street Fair and the Mermaid Festival.

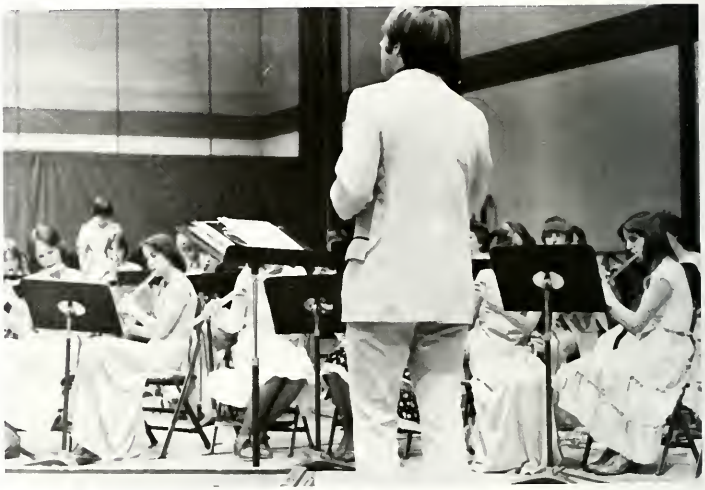
Stage Band, which is a choice selection of brass players, and the High School Concert Band had to cancel various engagements and lost valuable days of practice due to snow.

Nevertheless, the concert band conducted a concert for dedication of the new addition and a Chicken Barbecue-Concert with the High School Choir.

The Stage Band provided entertainment for a Father-Son Banquet and at the Pop's Concert.



Soloist Bob Heimann puts his all into trumpet playing while the rest of the stage band provides backup music.

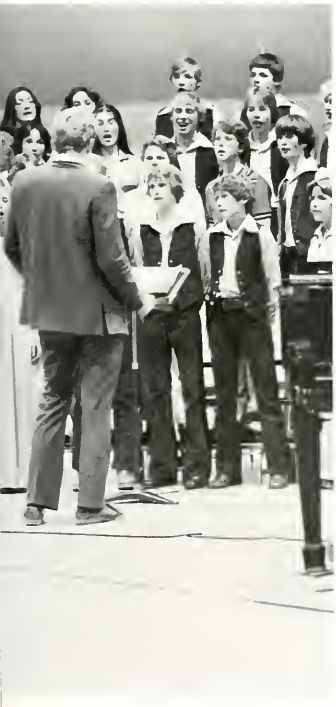
SEXTET

Arrayed in apricot gowns and brown suits, the Swing Choir and Sextet entertained many organizations.

The Swing Choir engaged in more than 40 performances and was enjoyed by young and old alike. They also participated at the Woodlan contest.

Appearing with the Swing Choir, the Girl's Sextet pleased their audiences and was awarded a superior rating in District and State Contests.

Senior Brad Byerly accompanied all of the choral groups.



Mr. Potter manages to keep a smile on most everyone's face.

Swing Choir members perform their version of "I Only Want to be with You."

Choir Splits Into Ensembles

Under the direction of Mr. Neil Potter, the high school choir performed an assortment of concerts.

In conjunction with the Drama Club play, the choir and band held a Chicken Barbecue featuring a concert in the new gym. The annual Christmas Choral Vespers and Pops Concert were held but due to snow days the Choral Festival with two area schools was cancelled.

For a change of pace, the choir split into girls and boys ensembles and sang a new variety of songs.

Capturing first place at the gong show, Lisa Clark, Shari Kaehr and Ann Fiechter sing their version of "We're Not Ones To Go around Spreading Rumors."

During their voice lesson, Barry Williamson, Brad Byerly, and Hal Lehman sightread new music with the help of Mr. Potter's piano playing.

Highlighting the "Chicken Barbeque" concert, the newly formed boys' ensemble sang "Family of God."

To the delight of the choir, "The Monster Mash" performs (?) at the second annual Gong Show.

Mr. Potter and the choir add culture to the Winter concert by singing "I Never Saw a Moor".

Planting yellow mums in front of the school was one way the SSS commemorated Sunshine Week.

The 1977 officer's Sunshine Camp generated a couple of surprises for AC. In the annual talent pageant, Lori Clark was chosen as Miss Sunshine for Indiana. Lisa Longenberger earned the Miss Congeniality title from all the camp members.

Sparking an element of curiosity, SSS added the Morp to its roster of activities. The Morp (prom spelled backwards) was a 50's sock hop. Shari Kaehr was crowned Neeuq for the night, all proceeds went to the Riley Childrens Fund.

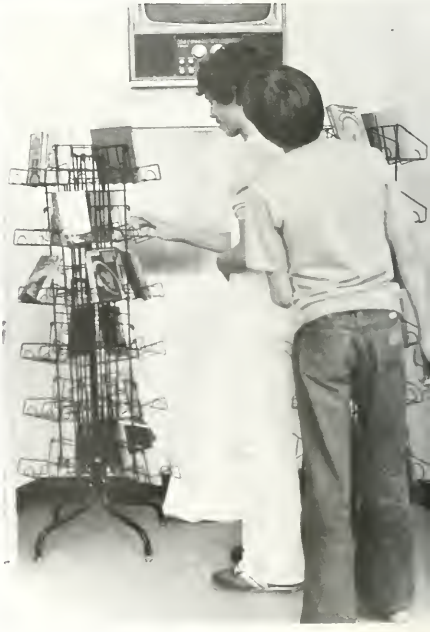
Lisa Longenberger received the Rowena Stucky Scholarship and also the Senior Sunshine Girl of the Year award. Julie Speakman was awarded the District 2 SSS Nurse's Scholarship.

Varied Tasks Keep Librarians Busy

Keeping track of over 10,000 different titles, 40 periodicals, and 5 daily newspapers sounds like an impossible task. But the 22 library assistants daily spend their free time helping Mr. Tatman and Mrs. Nussbaum keep everything in order.

Checking out books and filing magazines and cards comprise many of their routine tasks.

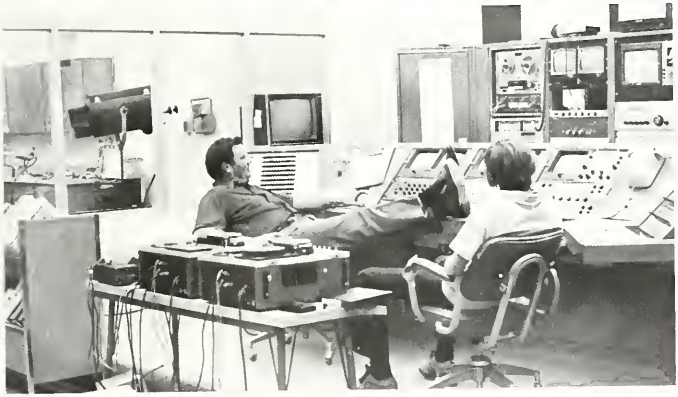
Student librarians often share their checkout area with faculty and other "customers."



Students browse through the well-kept paper back book area, one of the responsibilities of the student librarians.

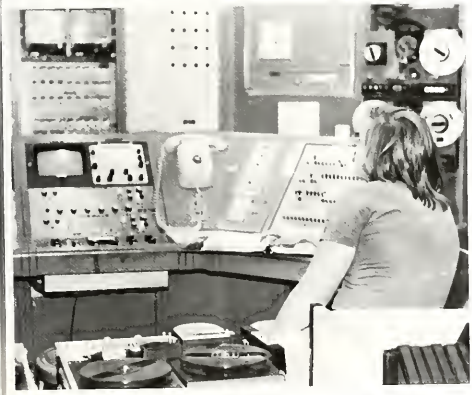
AV Center Goes Color

"Why can't anyone wrap an extension cord neatly?" ponders Jeff Landis.



Eleven new color televisions plus two color cameras enabled the AV Center to transmit color programing throughout the school. Making over 250 tapes available to all three schools involved the time and effort of Mr. Chronister and his staff.

Casette recorders, projectors, public address systems and overheads all were readied for daily distribution to staff and students alike.



Mr. Chronister props his feet up for awhile and chats with a student.

P.E., a required course for all freshmen and sophomores, took on new dimensions this year. A swimming pool, gymnasium, and two instructors, Becky Braden and Tom Hough, were added to the Phys. Ed. Department.

The students participated in various group activities geared toward teamwork such as soccer, speed ball, volleyball, and basketball. Also offered were more individualistic sports — gymnastics, track and field, wrestling, archery, and swimming. In this way each student's interest in lifetime sports for fun and recreation increased.

CPR training, taught by EMT's and sponsored by the American Heart Association, was an important part of the sophomore Health class. Through a series of books, the class, taught by Barry Humble, studied mental health, family life and dating, consumer health, pollution, and the "pleasures and problems" of alcohol and drugs. Panel discussions and an emphasis on responsibility were aimed toward helping students make mature decisions about their physical and mental well-being.

President Julie Ringger emceed the program. Guest speaker James Rinkenberger received a standing ovation from the students. All of the old members participated in some way — from lighting the candles to serving refreshments. Along with the NHS pin and certificate, each new member picked up a long stemmed red rose as a momento of the evening.

Hal Lehman bears a proud smile while John Jesionowski "pins" him for NHS.

FCA Carnival Makes Big Hit

FCA takes time-out from their Carnival for a group picture.

The boys and girls FCA groups, guided by their sponsors Barry Humble and Audrey Swartzendruber, shared in singing, devotions, and refreshments.

One of their biggest projects, a Carnival, involved lots of work but fun for everyone. Held at the A.C. baseball diamond on April 28, some of the exhibitions were a celebrity dunk tank, a pie throwing contest, and a live snake show. Proceeds were given to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation and used for the treatment of lung disease.

Taking on leadership roles were huddle captains Gary Hoffman for the boys and Lisa Longenberger for the girls.

After volunteering his services at the Carnival, Mr. Walsh has second thoughts about his decision.

Drafting, building trades, metals, graphic arts, woods and engines complete the list of electives for Industrial Arts. Students involve themselves in projects all the way from printing T-shirts and Prom programs to making hammers and overhauling small engines.

The national organization for young people interested in agriculture, FFA, celebrated their 50th anniversary in 1978 and our chapter went to extreme measures to make this year memorable.

The soil judging team displayed much talent this year as they captured second place at district which made them eligible to compete at state level. Participating in various contests were the dairy judging team, poultry judging team, and the livestock judging team, which won the top five places at the Geneva Livestock Judging contest. The FFA officers also competed in the Parliamentary Procedure contest.

The members of the Ag. classes stepped out and moved ahead by putting the theories that they studied into practice in FFA and they developed skills which prepared them for a career in agriculture.

Newly added columns to the paper included Prophet, Jez Sez II, and Dear Loveyheart. Center spreads also added a new dimension.

Many extra hours were spent in the Pit discussing new ideas and working on layouts.

Editors for 1978 were: Tom Lambert — editor; Lisa Bryan — assistant editor; Gene Gerber — Sports editor; John Jesionowski — feature editor.

With Mr. Van as the advisor, the student council had a busy year. Once again they planned Homecoming and the All-School Slumber Party. Changing Play Day from October to April, it was once again a big success.

Student council representatives voiced their opinions on different subjects and rules to be made. They donated a lot of free time to better the student body and their activities.

1978 officers were: President — Ed Hack; Vice President — Brad Snyder; and Secretary-Treasurer — Tom Lambert.

Increased interest in girls' sports was evident at AC this year. With Miss Braden as coach, inter-scholastic basketball and volleyball teams were formed at the middle school level.

The 1978 seventh grade girls participated in four games during the season with a final win-loss mark of 2-2. They defeated South Adams twice while losing to both Parkway and Lancaster. Dove Vanhorn, Jill Arnold and Kim Ivans were high scorers throughout the season.

Winning over Parkway by a close score of 18-17, the M.S. Girls Eighth Grade Basketball team ended up with a record of 1-3. Defeats came from Lancaster and twice by South Adams. Julie Litmer and Nancy Waterhouse worked hard to be the high scorers during the year.

M.S. Girls Volleyball had quite a large turnout this season: There were one seventh and two eighth grade teams. The only loss suffered by all three came from Bellmont. All the volleyball teams finished with a 5-1 record.

Once again the M.S. Cheerleaders divided up into two squads of five each in eighth grade and five girls in four squads in seventh grade. This type of "squad cheering" gave each girl a chance to cheer.

MIDDLE SCHOOL WRESTLING TEAM

With an emphasis on "running and competing as a team", each member of the middle school cross country team set a goal for himself which he worked to attain during the course of the season. The harriers captured first place honors at two conference meets held at Shoaf Park and turned in an impressive second place finish in the ACAC conference meet.

Intramural wrestling gave over fifty middle school boys the opportunity to develop individual skills and basic wrestling moves. Students participated in a double-elimination tourney in their own weight class. In three of the ten weight classes, the championship round extended into overtime. Team victories came over Ossian and Lancaster.

The '78 track team was encouraged to discover in what areas they excelled — field events, long-distance running, or sprints. The team broke existing middle school records in the 100, 220, 440, and 880 yard dashes, the 440 and 880 yard relays, the long jump, the high jump, and the discus throw in one of their best years to date.

The seventh and eighth grade football teams spent many hours of intensive practice learning the fundamental skills of football in order to improve play. The seventh grade squad finished the season with a successful 3-2 record despite losses to county rivals, Bellmont and South Adams. The eighth grade squad ended the season with a 2-3 record and wins over Southern Wells and Ossian.

The eighth grade basketball team highlighted a successful season with a victory over Woodlan to capture their first eighth grade ACAC basketball championship. The 17 dedicated members of the squad helped compile a 10 win, 5 loss record.

Learning to work as a team was an important part of the seventh grade basketball program. The squad concluded the season with a 5-10 record.

Preparing middle schoolers for high school is no easy task as any sixth, seventh, or eighth grade teacher could tell you. Opportunities have arisen for teaching techniques through new additions which include science labs, library, and home economics areas.

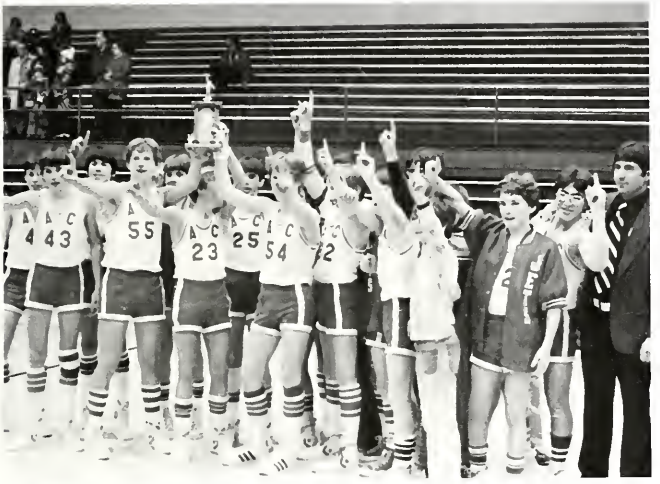
It's celebration time following the ACAC championship victory!



Participation in various sports gave eighth-grade students a chance to improve their athletic skills. Eighth graders were also allowed to cover school events and sports for the new middle school newspaper, "What's Happening?" Science projects, string art in math, and studying Greek myths prepared eighth graders for more difficult high school courses. Selecting classes under the supervision of the MS guidance office required decisions affecting their future. The entire class journeyed to Cedar Point for an exciting climax to their middle school career.

Sports Keeps 7th Grade Involved

Surrounded by anxious 7th grade home ec girls, Mrs. Amstutz explains to them cooking techniques.

Basketball ... study ... volleyball ... band ... football ... cheerleading ... assemblies ... track and cross country all had a claim on the seventh graders' time. Under the supervision of Coach Braden, seventh and eighth grade girls' basketball and volleyball teams were formed for the first time.

Stuck in the middle of middle school, the seventh graders discovered new interests and new friends. Extra-curricular activities played an important part in the budding social life of a seventh grader.

With the help of Mrs. Fields, Darin McIntosh puts the new Middle School library into good use.

Students entering sixth grade found that they must accept new responsibilities of being in middle school. Changing classes, meeting new teachers, and taking on harder courses required the sixth graders to mature. During sixth grade, students could get involved in vocal music, art, and band. Intramurals provided athletes with the chance to learn and compete in sports.

During Pioneer Day Celebration these 5th graders learn the art of leather making.

Anxiously waiting to step out and move ahead to Middle school, fifth graders visited The Children's Museum as one of their latest field trips.

Units of fifth grade included research on life during the times of the thirteen original colonies.

Subjects taught during the school year were Social Studies, Math, and Science. Health classes informed students about harmful effects of smoking, drinking and drug abuse.

As a climax to a year of Indiana History, the fourth graders dressed as early settlers and enjoyed pioneer games. Along with this subject, they also toured the Old Fort in Fort Wayne.

Special work programs were established, such as cleaning up football stands after home games.

New projects included having a police dog visit the fourth grade and a field trip to the Neil Armstrong Air and Space Museum in Wapakoneta, Ohio.

While most fourth graders toil on their lessons, some find their homework amusing.

Students and teachers share a private joke between classes.

Heather Ford struggles with her boots as recess approaches.

Clowns, elephants, lions, cotton candy and balloons were all part of the Shrine circus, which the third graders attended. They also viewed the movie, "Little Prince."

Among many other units, pupils studied proper dental hygiene and Indian customs.

With hunger in their eyes, grumbling stomachs and homemade baker hats, second graders visited Heyerly's bakery, then demonstrated their cooking ability in class.

Adding knowledge to their anxious lives, students stepped out and moved ahead in learning cursive writing.

The second graders' enthusiasm centered around a pinata in their "Christmas Around the World" unit, a zoo unit, and a craft unit.

Melanie Martin places her rabbit friend on the flannel board to portray a story.

Listening exercises help class members complete their lessons.

"It was back to earthy things in first grade this year," expressed Mrs. Habegger. The theme, entitled "Country Living", enabled each area to select a related name such as "Sunny Acres".

The rustic theme was carried throughout the school year. For example, when students needed help in Spelling, they sat under the haystack and if pupils required word help, they fished for words in the pond.

Spring rolled around with science projects and visits to area farms. A Country Fair in May provided a jolly climax to the year.

Assisted by Home Ec. students, kindergartners baked cookies for a parent open house. This was one example of their learning-by-doing activities. Bright, exciting displays interested students in units on holidays, patriotism, and body awareness. Students practiced writing their name, address, and telephone number after gaining a basic knowledge of the alphabet and numbers through twenty-five. Creativity was also emphasized. As a kindergartener remarked, "We like to cut and paste and color ... and other stuff."

Michael Christner gives Shawn Isch a boost and Mike Cox hangs on tight as the kindergarteners utilize the new gymnastic equipment.

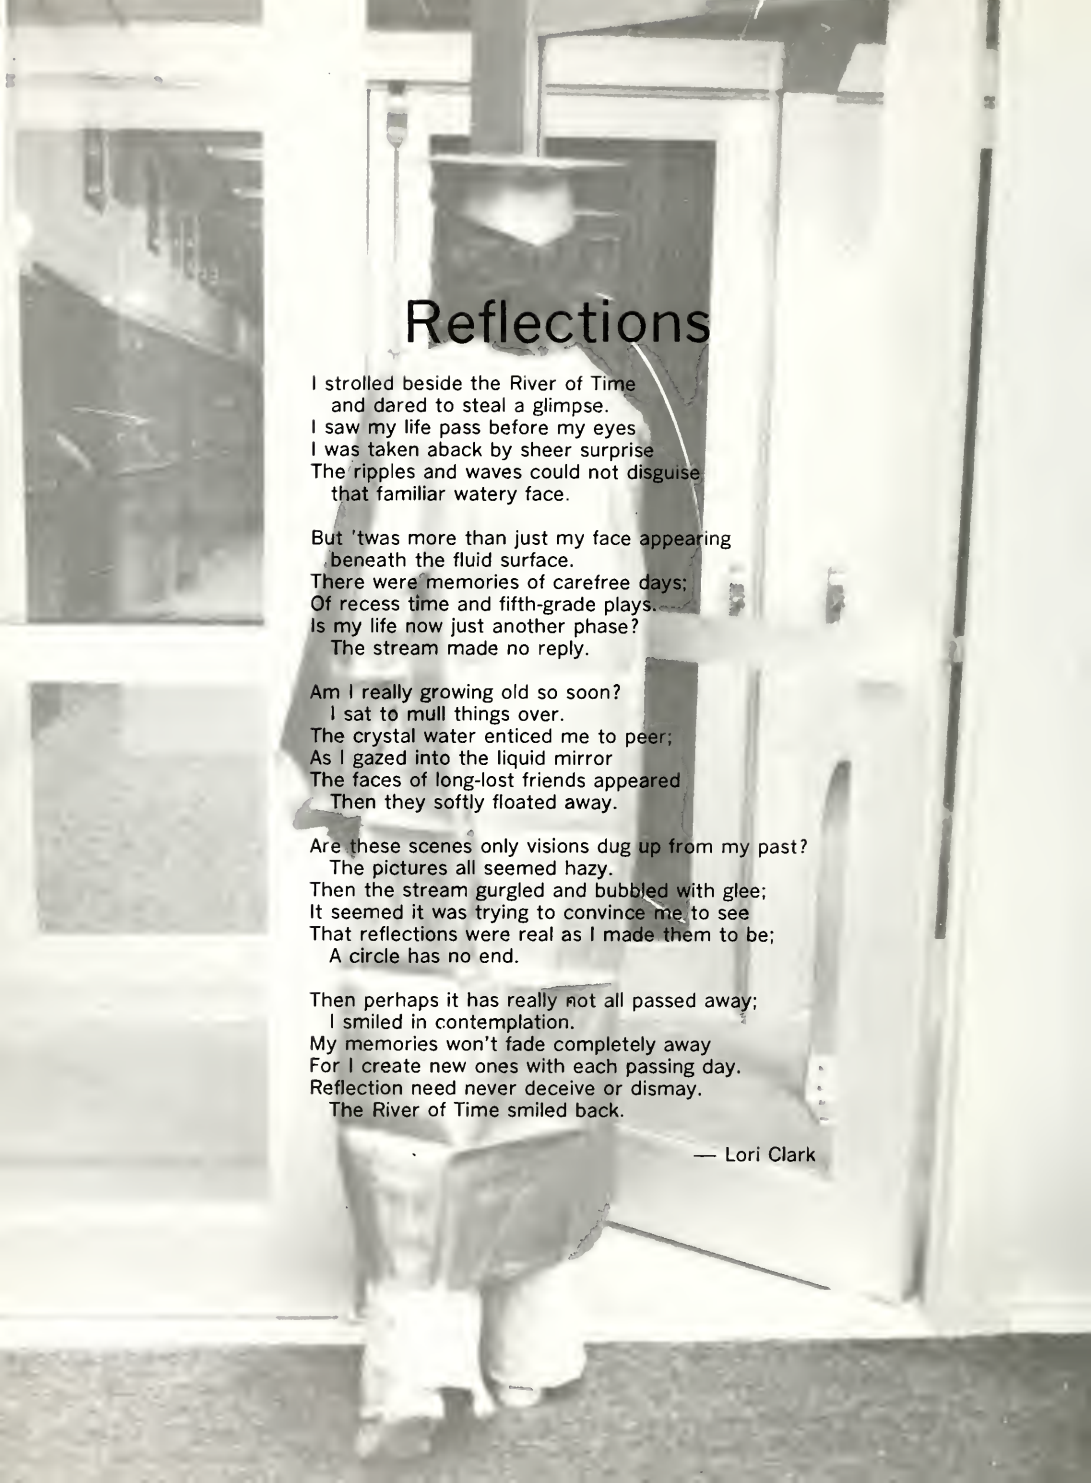
Another year completed! For some, summer begins a three month vacation from school while for others it begins a future unknown. Griefs and sorrows or joys and happiness will greet us as we step into each new day. To relive yesterday proves impossible so now is the time for STEPPING OUT AND MOVING AHEAD.



Reflections

I strolled beside the River of Time and dared to steal a glimpse.
I saw my life pass before my eyes
I was taken aback by sheer surprise
The ripples and waves could not disguise that familiar watery face.

But 'twas more than just my face appearing beneath the fluid surface.
There were memories of carefree days;
Of recess time and fifth-grade plays.
Is my life now just another phase?
  The stream made no reply.

Am I really growing old so soon?
  I sat to mull things over.
The crystal water enticed me to peer;
As I gazed into the liquid mirror
The faces of long-lost friends appeared
  Then they softly floated away.

Are these scenes only visions dug up from my past?
  The pictures all seemed hazy.
Then the stream gurgled and bubbled with glee;
It seemed it was trying to convince me to see
That reflections were real as I made them to be;
  A circle has no end.

Then perhaps it has really not all passed away;
  I smiled in contemplation.
My memories won't fade completely away
For I create new ones with each passing day.
Reflection need never deceive or dismay.
  The River of Time smiled back.
